DW001 The Journey ...

My friends, today we start a new chapter. It has taken a long time to bring your lives to this point. You have had to embrace the years of uncertainty. The years where you were not able to see clearly, and where I required you to take hold of what I was setting in front of you "By Faith."

Well today is a surprise that I have been waiting to reveal to you for sometime. Within the next several days you will be given insight into areas that you were not able to understand in the past.

As the revelations begin to be brought forth, recognize that you are receiving insight, that to this point you have been veiled from. As these revelations start to appear ... do not miss your moment of visitation, due to business.

Understand that these are in fact the strategies that will empower you to take ground in the future. It is imperative that you take hold of the blue-prints, and journal all that I have sent for you to take hold of. This is what you have been waiting for, yet unable to comprehend the fullness, the hidden mystery of it.

Now it comes forth, now it starts to make sense. As you begin to lean into what you will now be shown, it will immediately start to unfold. Picture a scroll being opened for the first time before your eyes, and you will be encompassed with a great light.

It will require, both time and effort, to retrain your eye to see, as I see. Your eyes were created to see, and discern spiritual matters. So much hinges on this moment in time. Allow yourselves to be drawn by My Spirit, into new realms of understanding.

At first, it will feel awkward, but the end result, is well worth the journey. Your eyes are able to see, your ears are able to hear, your authority is being established. This is the battle of battles; there can be no turning back. You have successfully crossed over the threshold, entering into, and facing off with the giant at the gate that opposes your soul, in what you were called to be, and do.

This is a battle, that we will be victorious in.
