DW002 My Hands & My Feet ...

My friend, instead of looking at what you do not have in place, look at what you do. Take your eyes off your present circumstances, and look at all those who are around you that need what I have imparted into who I have called you to be.

There are many things in life that will not make sense at the time. Only when you are able to look back will you be able to see clearly as to what I was doing. I have brought you this far to succeed, not fail. Reach out and touch someone today and it will change your perspective.

Your life was created to be a living demonstration of who I am. Your hands and your feet need to be an extension of who I am. As long as your eyes are focused inward on yourselves, you will never see the bigger picture. Life is not about you, rather it is about all those who desperately need what you have been given.

As soon as you take your eyes off your situations and allow Me to show you others, you will no longer remain self-centered with eyes that are totally focused on you. Your strength to where you are at, comes when you are able to reach out, and be My hands & My feet in the midst of the struggle that you find yourselves in.

Don't allow yourself to get entangled in the cares of this world. Keep your eyes fixed upon your heavenly perspective, and as you do it will become your greatest joy. Your life was created to be a blessing to all those that cross your path each and every day. It all hinges on your perspective. As you learn this vital key it will help to establish you, in the days to come.

Nothing can stop you, or the momentum when it starts to move in the right direction. Take time today and think about all those who you have been able to help over the years. It was always because you were able to see past your own pain, your own circumstance. It is here where you were able to connect with those and give them words that brought forth an amazing transformation in many of their hearts.

Seriously look back and reflect on what has brought you now to the point that you find yourself at.
